Cristobal Gaggero is a Commercial Engineer, graduated from The International SEK University of Chile, he holds a diploma in Biological and Cultural Matrix of Human Existence and wrote his degree thesis about the productive organization and how to generate well being in the work spaces for the persons and the community that sustain the organization, being a public or private one, The title of the work was A human view upon the productive organizations. He has worked in a great variety of organizations in Chile and other countries in Latin America always focusing on introducing an ethical view to the human community constituting the organization. In 2004 he wrote a paper on The Emotions in Productive Organizations and in 2006 he wrote a paper on Corporate Social Responsibility. At present moment he holds the post as financial manager at the Matriztic Institute and occupies himself in the projects of collaboration between the Institute and various national and international organizations, he also conducts a course directed to Human Resource Managers given at the Institute.