Educational and training games:
Sten Lindeberg has developed a group of unique business games (“CHANGE”) used in entrepreneurial and business administration and strategy courses in all types of companies and organisations and at all levels in companies. It is a business simulation game based on carefully designed concrete action boards and symbols and, with its many different tailor made applications, extremely learning effective and very appreciated by participants in many different countries, particularly among women entrepreneurs.

Other learning games include simulations and role-plays in a wide range of topics.
